DISCUSSION TASK WORKSHEET

What are the best strategies for ending sexual violence against women?

SUGGESTED PROCEDURE:

- Divide the class into groups of 4.
- Every group gets one task sheet.
- Each member of the group is given a corner of the sheet with its corresponding strategies.
- Each person spends a few minutes preparing arguments that support their given strategies.
- Each member of the group presents and argues in support of their two strategies ("X is central to ending sexual violence because...").
- After all four members have presented, the group discusses and agrees on which three strategies they believe to be the best.
- Class conversation in which each group tells the class what three strategies they have decided on and present their supporting arguments ("We believe X to be the best strategy because...").
- The teacher may tally the strategies mentioned by the different groups, ending the class discussion with an overview of the opinions of the class as a whole.
